

Sonam is a bright student studying in standard 10 in Sathya Seva high school. Sonam comes from one of the northern states of India called Chhattisgarh. She is totally Blind girl due to nerve damage; her parents are lepers living in utter poverty in one of the lepers' colonies.

Sonam Came to Jyothi Seva School at the age of 7. The Sisters and staff found her to be an eager learner. Sonam believes that it is God's love and goodness that has brought her to Jyothi Seva and she is very grateful for this. She refuses to go home even for her holidays. She completed her primary education in our school and passed out with a high first class. She then joined Sathya Seva high school for the next step of her education where she is currently studying. In the previous academic year she passed with 76% of marks and she is confident of getting very good results in the board exams this year.

Sonam enjoys music so while doing well in her academics she is also interested in learning music. She is a part of the Jyothi Seva Choir and eagerly participates in all the cultural events. She is also learning the piano and her favorite composer is Mozart.

Sonam's aim is to do well in her studies and get a good job so that she will be able to help her family and bring them out of poverty and help them to live a life with dignity.

We are very happy and proud to extend helping hands for such students who in turn will be the sole bread winner of the family besides all her disabilities.
